Dear Tom:

About the Camp Rainbow Gold proposal:

The infrastructure we have out past Triumph is pretty weak. In the summers the road is clogged with dust, sheep drives, recreational drivers, etc. It is very narrow, has lots of blind curves, a few tricky narrow spots; and in the winter, it is white out time, then potholes and mud bogs, cars running off the road and so forth.

Unless all this can be remedied, it seems to me unwise to invite more traffic. There seem to be a lot of beds and activity in the pending proposal, and I can't imagine it ultimately going unused in the winter and other seasons, which makes me very wary.

Just some thoughts,

Jann Wenner
