BLAINE COUNTY SEARCH AND RESCUE NEW MEMBER INTRODUCTION

Welcome to Blaine County Search and Rescue (BCSAR). You are joining an organization that is dedicated to helping people in need. We each join this organization for our own reasons; the National Association for Search and Rescue summarizes one of the best reasons with their motto:

“So Others May Live”

This introduction packet has been created to help familiarize you with Blaine County Search and Rescue and what is required to become an active member within the organization. While this packet is not comprehensive, it will provide enough information and training guidelines to assist you in becoming a valuable asset to the organization during BCSAR operations. The training members complete will also help determine where each member can best serve during operations.

MISSION STATEMENT

It is the mission of the Blaine County Search and Rescue to maintain a group of trained volunteers to be used as directed by the Sheriff of Blaine County. This group shall be trained to search for and rescue those lost or injured, or those who are victims of natural or man-made disasters in Blaine County.

BLAINE COUNTY CHARACTERISTICS

Blaine County encompasses over 2600 square miles. Elevations range from a low point of 4200 feet at Lake Walcott in Southern Blaine County to a high point of 12,009 feet above sea level on Hyndman Peak in the Pioneer Mountains in Northern Blaine County.

Over 80% of Blaine County is owned by some form of public government. The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) and the National Forest Service account for 75% of this land. This translates into a lot of areas available for the public to utilize. From tall mountain peaks and meadows to high plateau deserts and lava fields, Blaine County Search and Rescue conducts operations in all types of climates and geography.

Blaine County is adjoined by ten other counties; more than any other county in the state. These counties share similar geographic features with Blaine County and are also comprised of mostly public lands. Each of these counties may request mutual aid in a search or rescue operation.

OPERATIONS

Blaine County Search and Rescue operates under the authority of the Sheriff of Blaine County, Steve Harkins. The Sheriff is responsible for all search and rescue operations within the county per Idaho statute.

BCSAR performs multiple types of operations in the performance of its duties. The most common operation conducted is a search for a missing person. Other types of operations include:

- Medical assistance and extraction of people injured in the backcountry
- Body recovery of fatal accident victims
- Search for avalanche victims
- Assist in swift river rescues
- Assist in criminal investigations
- Assist Sheriff's Office during natural disasters

Anyone can call for assistance from Blaine County Search and Rescue, but it is the officers of the Sheriff's department that determine when and who gets activated within the group. Calls for help are taken by a dispatcher and given to the ranking officer on duty to determine if there is a need for BCSAR.

Once the determination that BCSAR is needed, senior members of the group are called in to begin planning the operation. This planning group typically consists of two or three members with experience in the type of operation at hand. They receive information from the ranking officer and reporting parties that will help determine the number of people and equipment required and the best plan for conducting the operation.

Once the planning stage is started, a call out page will go out to notify members of BCSAR that an operation is about to begin. The page, sent by the Blaine County Emergency Communications Center, will be a description of where members are requested to meet and may include what the operation involves or what type of equipment is required. Not all operations require that all members be notified. However, the typical rule of thumb is that having more people than needed responding to a call is better than not having enough people to do the job.

In addition to running searches itself, Blaine County Search and Rescue provides logistic and support services for other rescue groups such as the Galena Backcountry Ski Patrol, and auxiliary groups who operate under the authority of the Blaine County Sheriff's Office. BCSAR also works with other organizations including local Fire Departments, Sun Valley Company Ski Patrol, Heli-Ski Guides and the Rescue Dive Team.

MEETINGS

BCSAR regular meetings are held the second Thursday of every month at 6 p.m. The location of the meeting can vary so reminder email messages and texts are sent to confirm meeting plans and locations approximately one week prior.

MEMBERS

Blaine County Search and Rescue is a volunteer organization. All training and operation time is donated by the individual member for the good of the organization. It is this commitment to the group that makes BCSAR one of the best rescue organizations in the state.

Since 1998, Blaine County Search and Rescue has trained its members to the national certified standards of the National Association for Search and Rescue (NASAR). These standards list three levels of training from Search and Rescue Technician Level III (SAR Tech) to the current highest level of Search and Rescue Technician Level I. Members of BCSAR currently include people qualified at the SAR Tech I and II levels as well as members with local training only. Training is also available in association with the Ketchum Fire Department and Wood River Fire and Rescue.

One of the goals of Blaine County Search and Rescue is that all field personnel have passed the SAR Tech II level of training. This training is in addition to the new member program and is an important milestone for all members to achieve. The SAR Tech II program is a standardized training that allows anyone familiar with it to judge the minimum capabilities of other people who have been through the training.

Members of the Blaine County Search and Rescue have also received specialized certified training in other areas including:

- Avalanche Awareness
- Tracking
- Outdoor Emergency Care / CPR
- Search Management
- K9 Trailing, Area Search, Avalanche, & Cadaver

EQUIPMENT

Blaine County Search and Rescue maintains a large cache of common equipment for the group as well as some equipment that is mandatory for all active members to have. This common equipment includes:
